Excerpt: . . . stipulates for a share in the net profits of a concern, and has a right to an account of the net profits, as a partner, he is liable although the partnership is limited to a single transaction or adventure. 1b. , 4-H. If three enter an agreement, by the terms of which one is to do certain things, and the other two certain other things, each at their own expense, and each is to be entitled to an equal share of the profits arising out of the subject matter of the contract, this does not constitute them all partners, and make them all liable for expenses incurred by either in the performance of their part of the contract. Heckert v. Fegeley, 6 Watts and Serg. , 139, cited p. 58, 9 C. B. If several persons make advances for a common object, and agree to share the gross returns in proportion to their advances, this does not create such a community of interest in profits or loss as to make such persons partners. Thus in Gibson v. Lupton, 9 Bing, 287, where two persons joined in the purchase of wheat, with the intention of paying for it, and dividing it equally, it was held that they were not partners. Lindley on Partnership, vol. 1, 24. it will be readily noted that the profits, (assuming them to be such), for division, if any, under the agreement herein are defined to be the division of the...
