Of the Department of Educational Investigation and Measurement; March, 1916 During the past few years educational measurement has been applied to arithmetic more than to any other subject, largely because of the ease with which papers can be scored. This application of educational measurement has been largely limited to work with integers. In Boston, the Curtis Standard Tests, Series A or B, have been given since 1912. Until December, 1915, no other phases of arithmetic work were subjected to scientific measurement. Inasmuch as a system for giving the Curtis tests has been worked out, and also because definite improvement in the use of whole numbers is being secured, the time seemed appropriate for extending educational measurement to other phases of arithmetic. As a result, a group of teachers and masters was selected in December, 1914, to constitute a Committee on Standards in Arithmetic, for the purpose of making a study of the problems involved in the addition, subtraction, multiplication and division of fractions.
